Dr. Charles A. Stephens Dead

Prominent, Nationally Known Writer Passed Away Tuesday After Several Years of Failing Health

On Tuesday morning at his residence at Norway Lake, Dr. Charles A. Stephens, Norway's best beloved citizen, passed to the Higher Life, leaving a devoted wife, Madame M. Scalar Stephens, a daughter, Dr. Edna H. Delano, two grandsons, Charles Stephens Delano and Robert Stephens Boynton, and a host of warm personal friends and admirers to mourn their loss. For several years he had been in failing health, but was tenderly cared for by his wife, who to him was "the sweet singer" of other days.

Doctor Stephens fitted for college at the Norway Liberal Institute, and graduated at Bowdoin and the Boston School of Medicine, where he received his diploma of Doctor of Medicine. He never intended, however, to practice medicine, but to devote his life to literature and research into biological and kindred subjects. As an author, in his special field, he had no superior and very few if any peers.

His productions are all well known, especially in the literary world and require no particular mention here. His style of writing was easy, fluent and charming. No one could tell a story better. In this respect he ranked among the masters. As a husband and father, a lover of his country and kind; and as a citizen and a man, his life was without a stain, and in the highest degree praiseworthy. His friendships were strong and lasting. For half a century the writer enjoyed an intimate and close acquaintance with him and if he had any faults, none were apparent. It can be truly said that thorough good man has passed from among us, but—

> "There is no death, a star's gone down
> To rise upon another shore.
> And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown,
> It will shine forever more."

The funeral services, which were private, were held at the Doctor's home, Thursday noon and were conducted by the Rev. R. H. Colby, pastor of the Congregational church of South Paris. The bearers were Judges C. F. Whitman and W. F. Jones, George W. Herrick and Milan R. Bennett. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery, South Paris.

Dr. Stephens was 86 years of age and was a lifelong resident of Norway and a well-known writer of boys' books. He was born in Norway, October 21, 1845, son of Simon and Harriet Upton Stephens. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Christine Stevens and his second, Miss Minnie Plummer of South Paris. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Dr. Edna Stephens Delano, of Dorchester, Mass., and two grandsons. Another daughter, Mrs. Janet Boynton, died several weeks ago.

He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1869 and received his M. D. from Boston University in 1887. He taught school for about five years and was principal of Norway Liberal Institute. In 1870 he started writing juvenile literature and for over forty years was connected with the Youth's Companion, retiring about a year ago from active work.

Few, if any, writers have ever equalled C. A. Stephens as a writer of reminiscences and he so understood the boys about whom he wrote that many wondered if he weren't just their age. Born in North Norway near Norway Lake, he attended several terms of district school, a couple or so at academies and entering Bowdoin in the sophomore class, worked his way through in two years. He won prizes in elocution while there and his first piece of writing was the year he was graduated. Its subject was "Among the Ruins of Ancient Science," for science was always his first love.

Two years out of college, he decided to live by his pen and took his first two stories to the office of the Youth's Companion, then edited by Daniel Sharp Ford, who paid him seven dollars each. He brought in two more the next week and with the $20 received began his travels which lasted more than twenty years. Mr. Ford sent him all over the world and he wrote as he traveled. All of the more than 3,000 short stories of about as well as numerous books were the product of real experience. All of his writing was done in long hand. He wrote of the privations of life in Nevada, was thoroughly cognizant of the life of the Maine woods, the deserts of the West, lived in mining camps with subsequent skirmishes with border smugglers, that made his books of interest to boys.

He was years ahead of modern educators in his advocacy of steamship travel for educational purposes and detailed schemes in his writings. It is thought by some that if he had had a company of wealthy and progressive men to work with him, he would have organized a liberal scheme of education based on this idea.

Besides the well known boys' books which included such favorites as "When Life Was Young", "Old Farm Stories", "Camping Out Series", "Knockabout Series" and a great many others, Mr. Stephens was the author of several pamphlets such as "The Panama Canal" and scientific books, the results of his medical research, indluded among others "Living Matter," "Pluricellular Man," "Living Life' and "Immortal Man."

His theory was that there was enough in every day life, adventures, romance, humor and tears for illimitable story material and writing a story a week for years, he never ran out of interesting experiences.

From the report of Crissie A. Matthews on flower mission and relief work:

"Many people take for granted that the work of the Flower Mission is only to hand out bouquets. It is true flowers are the basis of our giving, however, along with the over a million bouquets given out last year in the U. S. A., went many text cards, much literature and words of cheer, beside much substantial food, clothing, delicacies, toys for children, and money.

"The distribution of flowers on June 9, the birthday of Jennie Cassidy, the first national director of the department to shut-ins, those ill in hospitals or other institutions, the decorating of graves of white ribbon comrades, flowers and comfort bags for the soldiers in hospitals on Aug. 26, the birthday of Annie Wittenmeyer. At Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter, the distribution of baskets of food to the less favored than ourselves in every community are the special features of our work, together with cooperation in school garden work and plans for village improvement.

"Our part just now, as Mrs. Hall, our national director says, is to multiply members in our organization by which we build sentiment for Christian citizenship and for the retaining of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Health and Medical Temperance

Report by Evie M. Studley, State Director, Health and Medical Temperance.

Health is one of the greatest essentials of life. On it depends the maximum of our activities. A well known physician said recently. You can only get as far in this world as that body of yours is able to take you.'

Our beloved and recently promoted leader said, "Health is really at the foundation of our work. Fifty years ago in the year of our Lord 1881, the wise builders of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union realized the value of sound minds in strong bodies and the Department of Health was made a part of their work. How wisely they wrought is evident.

Today in the Jubilee year of this Department, health articles are a feature of almost every well regulated newspaper. Child Health Day, May Day, is now nationally observed.

Prohibition of the use of beverage alcohol is the great objective of the W. C. T. U. The purpose of the health department is to demonstrate the value of Prohibition through health.

The desire to keep or to regain our health has brought about the use of many nostrums that destroy rather than restore the health we seek—hence, the Department of Medical Temperance was adopted (in 1883) that we may learn to steer clear of that rock (patent medicines with alcoholic content) on which many a trusting human being has been wrecked, and by precept and example we are to teach others—hence our slogan, "It Pays to Educate."

It has been said that the Patent Medicine bill of the nation is $365,000,000 annually. Our mission is to give the facts to the people.

Let us not forget that there is no law against lies in advertisements. The public would like to believe that the United States Pharmacopoeia label is a guarantee of the purity of certain drugs and preparations. Not so. Like every other law, it is violated.

Long before prohibition, for 30 years, in the medical wards of Mercy Hospital Chicago, no alcohol was given to any patient because Dr. N. S. Davis, the physician in charge, did not approve of it. The death rate in that hospital in pneumonia, for these 30 years, was only 12 per cent, while in other large hospitals then using liquor freely, the death rate in the same disease varied from 19 to 38 per cent. and in typhoid fever during the same 30 years, the death rate was only 5 per cent compared with 16 to 22 per cent in those hospitals using alcoholic liquors freely. The astonishing record of said hospital was of great value in settling the treatment of those two diseases, particularly. Then the great Bellevue Hospital of New York experimented in pneumonia, with and without alcoholic liquors, the result being that the use of alcohol in that disease was abandoned. Truly: "It Pays to Educate."

Shall we, as good soldiers, fail to do our part in this matter?

—Mrs. Evie Morelen Studley, State Director Health and Medical Temperance, W. C. T. U.

Report of Department of Evangelism

Rev. Ruth E. Walsh, W. C. T. U. State Director of Evangelism, in her report said, in part:

"Our Department year verse (1 Cor. 15-58) "Be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord," is characteristic of our organization, and the encouraging reports from unions exemplifies the remainder of the text, "inasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

"According to National plans, devotional periods in all our meetings, local, county, and state, have been magnified.

"Five new Praying Bands have been formed, filling Maine's 1931 quota in the Crusade Anniversary. Scriptures have been given inmates of prisons and almshouses. New family altars have been set up. Many addresses on Systematic Giving have added to our list of Tithers. Tens of thousands of pages of temperance and religious literature were distributed. Teachers were reminded of their duty relative to Bible reading in schools. Owing to the baleful effects of the Junior Atheistic Society, organized in almost every state in the Union, with children from seven to seventeen eligible to membership, we must combat this evil. Hearing the Word read in its sweet simplicity will lessen the probability of our students being led into such organizations. "The entrance of Thy Word, giveth light." Under the auspices of the Evangelistic department, we recently formed a new union of twenty-six members at Allagash.

"Remember that we are dealing with an utterly unscrupulous enemy with millions of money and any amount of brains They will not yield to blows from padded fists or soulless petitions. As Christian patriots putting on the whole armor of God, let us stand on the firing line, and, relying on the arm of omnipotence, declare that we will follow our 1931 slogan, "Observance and Enforcement—not Repeal!"

—R. E. Walsh.

Report of the Directors of Medal Contests

Work in this department for the year past has been very encouraging. Nine silver medal contests, including the one at state convention, have been held in four counties, five in Knox County, two in York County, one in Androscoggin and one in Oxford County. A Grand Gold Medal speaking contest was held at Old Orchard, as part of the field exercises, five young people, representing four counties competed. Our quota for Crusade-Anniversary year 1930-31 calls for a Diamond medal contest. We could not do this as we had not enough eligible contestants, but we hope it may be accomplished this coming year.

Early in the year a letter was sent out to all county presidents, urging that especial effort be made to do some work in medal speaking contests, because of

The men of the church are invited to a Congregational men's rally to be held Monday, Sept. 28 in the South Paris church under the auspices of the Men's Club. Supper will be served at 6:30. The speakers will be Rev. Wm. S. Bean of New York. A nationally known and a most excellent speaker, who will talk on "The Activities of a Great Corporation", and Supt. Rodney W. Methodist

Services at the church were well attended last Sunday. In the morning the minister's subject was "The Unmatched Sword of David". The vested choir had special music and Dr. Howard Tyler brought a vocal solo, which added greatly to the service. The evening session of service and song was well presented by the full junior choir and congregational singing. Mr. Lyon brought forth another one of his especially prepared Sunday evening discourses from the pen of Bruce Barton. These illuminating talks are bringing the people to a better understanding of the Bible. Next Sunday evening the pastor presents again a story in the series.

The Epworth League of the church had its largest attendance Sunday at 6:30. The seating capacity was taxed. Elmer Aldrich brought to the attention of the League, "What is prayer, and how does it manifest itself in the individual, also what are some of the results of honest prayer". As Mr. Aldrich presided, hymns were sung and enthusiastic answers were given to his many self-searching questions. This year the Epworth League is cordially inviting both young and adult folks to be present at all the meetings. Much interest is in evidence and many of the older people are in attendance.

Mrs. Jennie Price White of Machias, who is attending the W. C. T. U. convention in this city, is the house guest of her intimate friends, Rev. and Mrs. Lyon, at the Methodist parsonage. Mrs. White is almost certain of a place as delegate once more to the seat of the Methodist General Conference, which is held next May in Atlantic City. She has served as lay delegate three times.

Plans are being made for the Annual Rally Day activities at the church. The first Sunday in October is the date of the final gathering. The pastor is planning to unite with the various organizations who are observing Rally Week, the few days preceding Rally Sunday. The men's class and the women's class are planning special attendance groups.

It is of special interest to the men folks of Norway to know that the Methodist Men's Brotherhood are already thinking about their annual chicken pie supper. The men voted to heap lots of chicken this year upon every plate, so as to even excel the copious servings given personally by the minister last year. The Men's Brotherhood informed their pastor that they were going to serve the chicken this year and that the dishes would be piled high with chicken meat and gravy. Mr. Lyon acquiesced and his diary has a new "Norway menu". The date is set for about the first week of November.

The church services, Sunday, will be on standard time.

Universalist

Morning worship on Sunday at 10 o'clock standard time. Rev. Conard B. Rheiner, the pastor, will preach on the subject: "Still-Born Knowledge". You can't go wrong by attending a church service.

The Sunday school will convene at 11:10 a. m. All departments will be in session. If there are children who have not yet registered for the new year, they should do so at once.

The Senior Y. P. C. U. will hold a devotional meeting at 6 p. m. Misses Caroline Downing and Clara Adkins are the leaders.

MAINE UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION

At the Maine Universalist Convention held in Oakland during the first days of this week, Glenn R. McIntire of Norway was re-elected president of the convention. W. Maford Mann was elected to membership on a special committee. Norway extended an invitation to the convention to meet in this place next fall.

At the Maine Sunday School Association Convention, Mrs. Anna A. Rheiner was elected secretary and director of Religious Education. The Norway Universalist Sunday School was presented with a gift of fifteen dollars in gold, because of its supremacy in schools of its size.

Those who attended the convention from Norway were Rev. and Mrs. Conard B. Rheiner, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. McIntire and Mrs. Eva Kimball. They returned home on Wednesday afternoon.

A stated assembly of Oxford Council, No. 14, R. & S. M., will be held in Masons' Hall, Norway, Friday evening, Oct. 2 at 7:30 p. m.

F. W. Sanborn returned Sunday night for a trip through the Eastern part of the state. He spent some time at the Daisey camp at Sourdnahunk. He is spending the remainder of the fishing season at Raymond.

SCHOOL AS A SHOCK ABSORBER

If the motoring is rough, it is the road, not the car. If the train rides roughly, it is the poor road bed or the poor equipment, never the disposition of the passenger. If young people of a community do not measure up on conduct or otherwise to as many different standards as there are people, it could not be any negative influence in the community, it is the schools.

If the youth of the community, bubbling over with life and energy, display more pep than we can recall possessing when we were young, it is the fault of the disciplinary methods of the school. If there is a wave of crime or petty thievery in a community, it is the fault of education. If the scholarship of the young people of a community is low, it cannot be a dozen distracting influences that make concentration on school work difficult, it is the fault of the school instruction. If homework is assigned to keep less energetic students up to grade, the schools are driving the young people too hard and impairing health. If schools make provision for health and recreation in their educational program they are indulging in fads and going beyond the legitimate sphere of activity of the schools.

If school costs are high, school officials are extravagant. If costs are low, with a resulting lower standard of education, the officials lack vision. If a superintendent exercises authority within his sphere, he is autocratic. If he does not, he is held inefficient and lacking the courage of his convictions. If schools are run wholly in the interests of pupils, with a cold shoulder to appeals for special favors or without consideration of factional interests, they acquire the enmity of all factions.

It is a strange paradox that people know more about how a school system should be conducted than any other single project. Being public institutions supported by public moneys, they hold public interest and attention. It is right that they should. A school system bears much the same relation to a community as the only child of a family does to its near relatives. Many a child has been subjected to too much guidance by many interested relatives. The school system is the one child of the community and it should be accorded every opportunity for growth.

The school is concerned with the scholastic accomplishments of the young people. It is concerned with their conduct in and out of school. It is concerned with their physical well-being. It is concerned with their moral standards. It is concerned with inclinations, interests and activities of its respective groups. It alone cannot be expected to overcome all negative influences. It cannot make void hereditary influences. It cannot furnish ability where ability does not exist. It cannot detect all personal characteristics where mass education is necessary. It cannot eliminate evil tendencies strongly embedded through heredity, environment or unwholesome influences.

It can be a party to remedying these situations. It cannot be held responsible for hazards, but it can reduce their effect to a minimum. It can be and is a shock absorber for the ills of a community.

The Fryeburg Fair will be held Oct. 6, 7 and 8, with three full days. The hall will be filled with exhibits in all departments. There will be pulling contests. The trotting will be the second and third days. There will be two ball games. Music will be furnished by the Brownfield Band all three days. See ad. in this issue.

The Children's Corner

The Fishing Game

As many as wish to can play this game. All you need are sharp eyes, quickness and a place to be comfortable. As well as a small basket, some pieces of paper, pencils and a love of fun. There, have you everything?

The words that are given herewith are to be copied on tiny squares of paper, all mixed up together and put into the box or basket. Now choose partners! And one captain!

Don't look! Just put your hands (in turn, of course) into the basket and draw one piece of paper with a word written on it, then another, until all are drawn.

The captain says, READY, SET, GO! And every child playing the game makes a list of all the words he sees IN the words he fished from the basket.

The captain says, STOP! And the partners whose lists are the longest win the game.

Here are some suggested words. Of course, you can use others. Remember, the words you see may not be properly arranged in the words you draw. You may have to hunt for them.

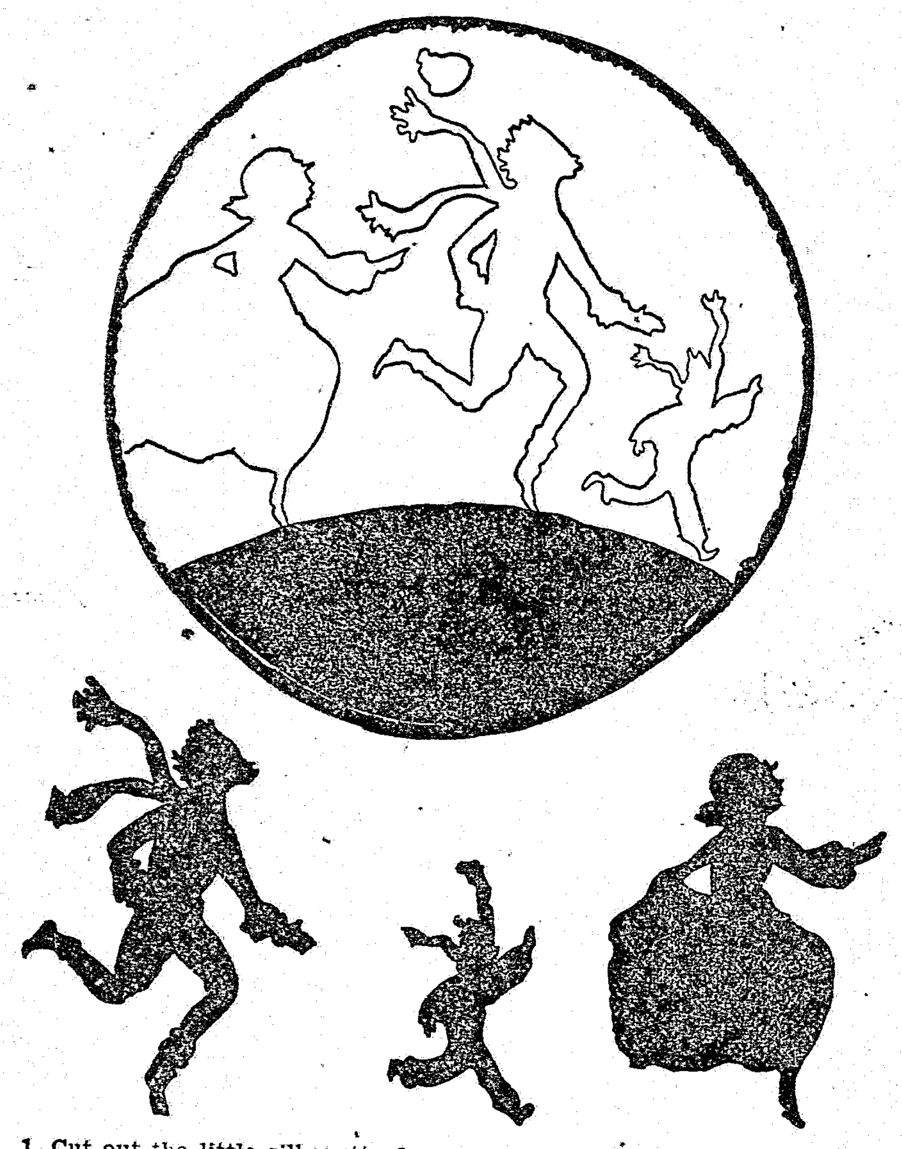
A Silhouette Picture to Make for Your Room



1. Cut out the little silhouette figures at the bottom of the page and paste them securely in their proper places in the round picture at the top.

AUNT BETSY'S LETTER

Dear Folks: Was so pleased to receive your lovely letters, Grandma's note interested me very much. I'm sure I would enjoy visiting you greatly, Grandma, but I'm afraid it would take off the edge of this mystery of wondering who each one is that writes to the Corner incognito. Don't you? But as you've tempted me thus far by giving me your address, I'm sure to go snooping around to see you! Your letters are so awfully interesting, please write some more, won't you?

I just knew that we would hear from you again, Thelma, after your visitors had departed!

The girl who wrote us such fascinating Indian stories was Madge Morgan of West Paris. She is our Corner historian, and a very apt one, too. Perhaps she has read the book, "Little Moon". Just now I am reading all the Pollyanna book and I'll confess I never opened the pages of any fiction that intrigued me more than Pollyanna's books! They are all wonderful!

Tell us about some of your favorite books, Thelma and write often.

Well, "Ma" Yates, I'll bet you are a peach of a mother. Your letter proves it! With seven youngsters, a mother surely is one busy person. I have but four, but believe you me, they keep me stepping lively.

Glad you like the dolls. I've had such fun making them. They can be made in any position and dressed in any style.

So Laura May is the new little lady's name? I must be sure and let old Santa know of her arrival as new babies are quite an interesting feature.

Please write again, "Ma", and remind those awfully good youngsters of yours that Aunt Betsy is waiting for news from them.

Yes, I went to the fair with my "Gang", and had a lovely time. No trouble at all. But I swallowed my heart three times in one second when an Ohio car collided with my three year old! No harm done—only gave her arm a sound whack.

The "Gang" enjoyed the vaudeville in the evening immensely and held their breath at the most exciting feats of the performers. But when the fireworks were set off—Boy! Of all the scattering. I had some time collecting the family again!

—Aunt Betsy.

BIG GIANT TAXES

That big giant, "Taxes", lurks in the most unexpected places and wears many disguises. He strips his plunder, not from a handful of rich men and big corporations, but from every man, woman and child in the United States. He takes from $300 to $500 annually from each average family purse who buy flour, tea, potatoes, coffee, meat, butter and every other item in proportion. He has also increased your rent. He is swelling the cost of a suit or a dress, of your shoes, your fuel, your railroad tickets, and of even your most modest amusements and recreations. Your doctor and your dentist must add to their fees the taxes levied upon them. Buyers pay the tax tribute. To the extent that you are a buyer, to that extent you "fork over".

The amount of your tribute is determined by the legislator, alderman, selectman, and other officials who are are put into office by your vote. "Taxes" is indeed a Figure Upon the Road. During the past few years he has grown to three times his normal size!—and is still growing.

WHO'S RUNNING THE GOVERNMENT?

In Speaker Reed's office in Washington the following took place:

The card of an eminent Southern gentleman was sent in, Hon. John Wise of Richmond.

"Show him in," drawled Reed.

"Who's running this Government, anyway?" blustered Wise, entering in great importance and assumed indignation.

"The great and the good, John, of course. Be calm," answered Reed in his twang.

"Well, the great and the good must all live in Maine, then."

"Here I come up here on business with the Secretary of State—Mr. Blaine from Maine."

"I call to pay my respects to the Acting Vice President—Mr. Frye from Maine."

"I wish to consult the leader of the United States Senate—Mr. Hale from Maine."

"I would talk over a tariff matter with the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee—Mr. Dingley from Maine."

"There is a naval bill in the House in which I am greatly interested—Chairman Boutelle from Maine."

"I wish an addition to the public building in Richmond—Chairman Milliken from Maine."

"And here I am in the august presence of the great Speaker of the greatest parliamentary body in the world—Mr. Reed from Maine."

"Yes, John, the great and the good and the wise. The country is safe."

And they went out laughing, to lunch with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States—Mr. Fuller from Maine.

THE FALLING RAIN

By Harry G. Chase

The falling rain has come again,
As it pours from leaden sky,
On field and forest road and lane
And all the country nigh.

The thirsty earth does take its fill,
The grass grows fresh and green;
All nature wakes with a new thrill
On every hand 'tis seen.

The raindrops falling on the roof
Doth make a pleasant sound;
As we listen to it, all aloof,
From weather out around.

The falling rain, the falling rain,
How blest are we to have again,
When other lands in zones are dry,
With no dark clouds upon the sky.

Humidity in houses should be from 30 to 50 per cent., but in most houses it is probably 20 per cent or lower—too dry for health. The drier the air, the more difficult it is to heat a house, as moisture in the air carries and retains heat. A rough practical test of humidity is to notice the inside of the windows on a cold day. If frost forms freely on the inside of the glass, there is probably enough humidity; if there is no sign of frost, the air is too dry. Pans of water attached to the furnace or to radiators are ineffective in supplying moisture to the air. The better types of commercial humidifiers for spraying the heated air as it leaves the furnace are very satisfactory.

A NATIVE OF SUMNER

Rev. Dr. Robinson has stirred Episcopalian Church people with new missal.

The New York Times says the Rev. Dr. Lucian Moore Robinson of Arlington Heights, Mass., custodian of the Standard Book of Common Prayer, will be "severely criticised" by the evangelical or liberal group of the Protestant Episcopal Church at the general convention in Denver, for having placed his imprimatur upon the American missal.

The American missal, which was issued recently under the auspices of the Anglo-Saxon group, is alleged by the opposing group to be an imitation of the Roman Catholic missal. The Times says 52 bishops have gone on record as opposed to its use and that a petition bearing 6972 names will be presented against it at the convention.

Rev. Dr. Robinson went from the town of Sumner and was many years a Protestant Episcopal clergyman in Philadelphia, Pa.

YOU AND YOUR MONEY

Distinction Between Stocks and Bonds

By John P. Mullen

Corporate instruments for raising capital consist of stocks, bonds and notes. Bonds differ from the note only in the matter of maturity and in the formality with which they are drawn. Between stocks and bonds, however, there is a very fundamental difference, one that the investor must understand thoroughly, if he is to put his money to work intelligently.

A bond is a conditional contract containing an agreement to pay a fixed sum of money at a specified date and to pay meanwhile interest at an agreed rate. Bonds, then, represent credit, and the bondholder is a lender, a creditor. Shares of stock, on the other hand, are units of ownership, representing capital, and the stockholder is an owner or proprietor of of a business enterprise, not a creditor. While both bonds and stocks represent liabilities of the issuing corporation, only the bonds are obligations.

As a proprietor, the stockholder is subject to all the risks of a business, and entitled to share in its profits, if profits exist after creditors' demands have been satisfied. His holding, theoretically, represents a permanent commitment, although he may realize upon it by the sale of his security or by liquidation of the company. He has no security for his outlay and can have none, first, because his contract is not one for the payment of a definite sum, and, second, because his income, as a part-owner, can be nothing but a share in the dividends declared out of profits after payment of all credit demands.

Since the bondholder has a definite promise of repayment with interest and the stockholder has none, we are accustomed to say that bonds are typical investment security and stocks are typical speculative purchases. The intent is not a disparage to stocks, however. The name of a security has little to do with its investment status. In practice there are risking bonds and sound and strong ownership shares. Securities, whether they be bonds or stocks, run the whole gamut of grades and qualities. There are bonds so gilt-edge that they may be bought and held without concern. There are bonds which carry a distinct risk in their dependence upon management. And there are bonds which have proved to be undesirable and worthless. On the other hand, there are, have been, and probably always will stock issues which are strong.

In judging stocks and bonds as investments, it must be kept in mind that they are "birds of a different feather", though you may find some similarities in their plumarge. Stock represents the share of ownership interest, the share of the responsibility of management, and the share of profit and loss in business enterprise. In no sense can it be regarded as an outside or creditor's claim. For this reason stocks, as a class, lack the security for principal that is a natural characteristic of bonds as a class.

MATRIMONY MADE EASY

Push Button Housekeeping

Fear of scorching the biscuits, or ruining the linens or letting the furnace go out no longer deters Mrs. Newlywed from setting up her own establishment. Automatic machinery has banished drudgery of spring housecleaning forever.

Science has made extraordinary progress in liberating the housekeeper from manual labor. The latest stride is the severance of human relations with the furnace. Old King Coal and young Mrs. Newlywed, it seems, are no longer on speaking terms. The latter finds her heating problems amply taken care of by the automatically controlled oil burner which operates without demanding any attention except an adequate supply of fuel. When the house needs heating the automatic burner starts up by itself and when the house is sufficiently warm it shuts down by itself. The modern "furnace man" is a thermostat.

Automatic control of cook stoves has developed to the point where food can be placed in the oven and a thermostat will do the rest. Automatic refrigeration keeps the food clean and pure. Automatic washing machines do the household laundry. Automatic ironers do the pressing. Automatic ventilators keep the house supplied with clean fresh air and contribute greatly toward keeping the draperies and rugs spotless. Mechanical cleaning and sweeping devices do the rest without raising objectionable dust.

In short, housekeeping is fast becoming fool-proof.

Fair Closed Friday

Good Crowd the Last Day

The eighty-ninth exhibition of the Oxford County Agricultural Society closed Friday night with a good attendance during the day, considering a postponement Thursday because of rain.

Practically all the exhibits were held in place until afternoon and by that time the midway commenced to look thin as shows packed up and cleared out.

Most of the crowd gathered around the baseball diamond during the morning game when the Philadelphia Giants shut out the Providence Giants 6-0 in a semi-[illegible] exhibition of swift baseball.

After dinner a bargain counter was offered the racing fans comprising four racing events on the score card and one unfinished race from Wednesday. A spill furnished plenty of excitement when the [illegible] took a nose dive, throwing Charlie [illegible] over the fence. Jimmie Jordan driving Martha Dewey crashed into the wreck. Neither horse was injured, but [illegible] had minor cuts and a strained ankle. Jordan was uninjured.

In the final heat of the 2:23 mixed [illegible] Chappelle and Al Russell [illegible] when they drove down [illegible] using their whips on each other [illegible] on their respective horses. The judges announced that for "unbecoming conduct on the race track", they [illegible] Chappelle $25 and suspension [illegible]. Later an announcement [illegible] reconsideration, whereby each [illegible] fined $50 and the suspension [illegible].

At least two men with a good record for attendance and punctuality were Dr. [illegible] of Lawence, Mass., who attended for his fifty-fourth consecutive year. Julian Brown attended the fair for his seventy-fourth year. He has never missed a fair since he was [illegible] years old, when he went with his [illegible] who carried him in her arms [illegible] of the day. Mr. Brown has seen the so-called "Pumpkin Show" develop into one of the best all round fairs in the [illegible], but there were some old time features he would like to see restored. Horse racing has speeded up, but the real thrill is not there, he said, because fifty years ago most of the horses were from local stables and well known. There isn't the [illegible] for the pulling as in days past, he remarked. Things have changed, but I may be a trifle old fashioned and not geared up to present day speed, he quoted [illegible].

Prof. William R. Chapman of Bethel and New York was prominent among the horsemen, being deeply interested in the racing game. For years the professor has owned and frequently piloted some of the speediest horse flesh in the light harness class.

The annual meeting of the society, Friday afternoon lasted but a few minutes. Leslie E. McIntire of Waterford was re-elected president. L. H. Cushman and George F. Hill, both of Norway, trustees, and Stanley M. Wheeler of South Paris, secretary and treasurer, all for the term of two years.

The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Pres. L. E. McIntire, East Waterford, superintendent of grounds; secretary and treasurer, Stanley M. Wheeler, South Paris; C. W. Bowker, South Paris, superintendent of hall; L. H. Cushman and George F. Hill, superintendents of horses; W. E. Penley, A. W. Weston, Fred Starbird, superintendents of cottle.

A stunt not on the regular program, Friday was the wing walking of John Haywood of Ottawa, Can., on the cabin plane piloted by Deane Cunningham of Auburn. This thriller was staged at a low altitude and attracted much attention.

The girl show in the midway survived until Friday afternoon, when the lid was clamped on by President Leslie E. McIntire. It is said the performance grew too hot and bounced outside the standards demanded by the society. A crowd of mourners lingered around, hoping the show would go on, but met disappointment.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Mrs. Charles D. Morse of North Norway presented us with a handsome bouquet of dahlias, first of the week. They were large, fine blossoms and were much appreciated.

Herman Card came in during the shower, Tuesday afternoon and brought a long, light brown rubber boot, which he picked up in front of L. F. Pike's clothing store and left it for owner to claim.

Now is the time to subscribe for the Norway Advertiser or have it sent to the young folks who are away at school. It is acceptable also to the friends who have been spending the summer vacation with you. There are items they would be interested to read and keep in touch with the new and old friends. Advertiser sent for any length of time, for any amount of money received. Price per year is $2.00.

Will L. Heath of East Waterford was here, Wednesday, and renewed his subscription to the Advertiser, to which he has been a subscriber for a great many years. Mr. Heath has recently returned from the C. M. G. Hospital, and said, "That is the noisiest darn place I ever saw, couldn't sleep nights, it was so noisy. Give me the country." Since his return from the hospital he has been sick with tonsilitis, which took more of his strength than the operation did, but he is on the gain.

A Poverty Ball for the Norway Firemen's Benefit Relief, to be held on Oct. 8, in the Opera House, is the next big event for the seasin. Rags will draw prizes both on the dance floor and in the balcony reserved row. We printed the window cards and tickets while the boys are doing the rest.

Luke Morse, custodian of the public camping ground, has broken up several corn roasts because the celebrators had not procured fire building permits. The law requires a permit from the selectmen if open fires are built. This means for burning brush, camp fires, weenie roasts or other activities in the open.

Alvin Lovejoy, R. F. D. 2, South Paris, who specializes in bedding plants, perennials and garden truck, called Wednesday. He has about forty varieties of perrenials for October delivery and has a word to say in the Intelligence Column.

L. D. Hill of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and North Lovell, called Saturday. Mr. Hill came from Mt. Vernon, Friday for his family and returned to their New York home, Sunday, for the winter The Hills enjoy spending their summer at North Lovell and make several trips to Maine most every year.

Lyman Herrick of North Norway brought a ripe strawberry to the office, Tuesday. He picked it September 21, where blossoms and a few green ones will continue to thrive until frosts arrive. "The Ohio State University School of Journalism is creating a Hall of Fame for newspaper folks who have adorned that favored State and made me one of the jury to select these worthies. I have just sent in my ballot for Charles F. Browne, (Artemus Ward) and six others. I have been adopted by Maine, so it seemed only fair to trade.

"Nothing new in these parts; hard times continue; it is dreadful. Only 61,000 were able to attend the ball game the other day, while but 52,000 automobiles went through the Hudson tunnel, Labor Day. Such hard conditions are fearful to contemplate. The publishing business is hard hit, though, especially the big circulation sheets with high advertising rates; to further tighten their belts the new Canadian tariff is turning a big screw. We are holding up pretty well, but could do better."

Yes, these two incidents were more or less heard and seen. Last week two families each living within a radious of ten miles of Norway, lost a day in the week. In one of the families there were two ladies and on receipt of the Advertiser, assumed it was Friday, the day they always receive it and proceeded as usual. So the next day they came to the village to do their shopping, but found the stores all closed and the church bells ringing. It seems the two questioned each other as to the day of the week and the solution was, "The Norway Advertiser always comes on Friday, so today is Friday (in reality the Advertiser was printed one day late on account of the fair, so they received it Saturday).

In the other case a man's wife and son went visiting Friday to be away till Monday afternoon. On the arrival of Monday afternoon she returned home and was surprised when asked by her husband, "Why, how does it happen you came home a day early, thought you weren't coming till Monday." "Why, this is Monday," she said. "No," says he, "this is Sunday afternoon." He accounts for losing the day as he was thinking it was Thursday morning when she went away and didn't plan to come home till Monday. The facts were she went Friday and in losing a day he observed Monday as the Sabbath.

NEW LICENSE PLATES

For 1932

A car load of 1932 auto plates has arrived at Augusta and the Secretary of State department began its preparation for distribution. Three other carloads are enroute. It is estimated that seven carloads will be required to care for Maine registrations in 1932. The plates are from Bellevue, Kentucky.

Fifty thousand of the new plates, having white numerals on a green background, were in the first carload shipment. Of these 14,000 will be held in the State house. The first 7,000, held as "reserved" numbers, are available to persons who make application before Dec. 1. Previously but 5,000 plates were reserved for this purpose.

Distribution of the plates to registration centers in Maine will be made by State trucks. Plates numbering from 14,000 to 34,000 will be shipped to Portland; Auburn will receive plates 34,001 to 44,000; Bangor, 44,001 to 54,000 and Rockland from 54,001 to 60,000. Plates numbers for the Presque Isle center have not been arranged.

IT'S TIME TO CAN GRAPES

By Betty Barclay

Grapes and sugar—with or without assistance—mean winter dainties. Grapes are excellent in the diet. So is sugar—a quick-energy fuel needed in cold weather. So try these two recipes now and reap your pleasure later on:

Grape Marmalade

Wash grapes, remove stems and separate pulp from skins. Put pulp in saucepan and cook slowly until seeds separate easily, then rub through a fine sieve. measure pulp, add an equal measure of sugar, and cook slowly thirty minutes, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Put in sterilized jars.

Grape Catsup

Stem, wash and drain grapes. Pulp the grapes. Heat the skins in just enough water to keep from burning. In another kettle cook pulp until the seeds loosen; press through colander and add to the skins. For every five pounds of pulp, add one pint of vinegar and boil until reduced to a pulp. Then for every five pounds of grapes, add to this two and a half pounds of sugar, one tablespoon each of ground allspice, ground cloves, and ground cinnamon, and cook until thick. Seal while hot. For catsup making, juicy acid varieties are preferred to the very sweet ones. Cooking of skins may be hastened by first putting them through a food chopper.

Advertising is as good in slack periods as in flush eras; it takes a little more courage, however, on the part of the advertiser.

MISS MEAT, MEET MR. SWEET

By Betty Barclay

"Oh, East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet", may be the poet's idea of things, but the dietitian in her kitchen shakes her head negatively. To her, almost any food may be introduced to almost any other with a fair chance that it will be love at first sight.

Witness the affinity of cranberry jelly with roast turkey, of apple sauce with roast pork, horseradish with cold meats, lemon juice with fish, or mint sauce with lamb. How impossible such combinations would seem if we did not know that they were delicious.

And now comes sugar, gallantly wooing meats of all kinds; not really as the title might suggest, to make them taste sweet, but without sweetening, to give them a greater all-around appetite appeal. Salt and pepper have long been chief rivals for the affection of Miss Meat, but the new suitor has appeared to make the wooing more interesting. This time it hardly seems that old loves are the best, for the new comer has in some magic way, greatly influenced Miss Meat and made her more delectable than she has ever been.

The average housewife spends from one-third to one-fourth of her food allowance on meat. Upon her selection of this, her main dish, depends alll her other dinner purchases, for meat is the foundation upon which she builds her entire menu. It is desirable, therefore, that she secure every particle of flavor and nutriment it contains.

There are several methods by which the flavor of meat may be improved. The base for all is seasoning. Marinades, sauces, strong juiced vegetables, and spices are all employed to add savoriness to the finished dish and increase the rich flavor of the meat. In preparing the three former, also in cooking the meat itself, the judicious use of granulated sugar is now advised. Without sweetening, it mellows the flavor and increases the delicacy of the finer cuts, induces a crisp, quickly-forming crust, which seals in the juices, causes the gravies to brown quickly and adds a slight piquancy to it.

With the coarser, tougher sections of meat, sugar produces gratifying results. In searing these meats, a method usually followed, the addition of sugar to the salt and pepper rubbed into the meat, produces a caramelization which adds immeasurably to the flavor of both meat and gravy.

When roasting meats, add one teaspoonful of sugar to one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of flour. Rub this mixture thoroughly into the surface of the meat which is then placed in a roasting pan without water or other liquid and seared in a hot oven (500 degrees F.). Then, if necessary, from a half to one cupful of hot water may be added and the cooking of the meat continued at a lower temperature. Some people have feared that the salting of meat before cooking would draw out the juices, but by adding sugar to the salt and other seasonings this will not be the case. The sugar caramelizes quickly and prevents the flow of the juice.

Try these recipes if you wish final proof of the value of this novel method of seasoning:

Broiled Round or Rump Steak

Select a steak cut 1 to 1 1-4 inches thick. Rub into it a mixture of 1 teaspoonful each of salt and sugar and 1-4 teaspoonful of pepper. Brush a hot skillet or broiler with fat and place the steak to cook. Turn now and then until done to your taste. Serve on a hot platter, dotting butter over the meat before serving.

Beef Piquante

Dredge two pound of bottom round steak with flour and pepper. Saute in four table spoons of beef or bacon fat, with a small slice of onion, until well browned on both sides. Add three cups of water or meat stock, one slice of lemon, one slice of orange, one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half cup dried apricots. Bring to the boiling point and cook slowly for one hour. Thicken a little, add more salt if necessary, and serve.

Club Chops

Sear pork chops lightly on both sides. On each chop place one slice onion, a slice of tomato, and a teaspoonful of minced green pepper and parsley. Season each chop with 1-4 teaspoonful of salt, 1-8 teaspoonful of pepper and 1-2 teaspoonful of sugar. Cover with a tablespoonful of buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until the chops are tender.

PUMPKIN PIE

A new and economical way to prepare pumpkin for a pie is to cut the pumpkin in halves, remove seeds, etc., put into a kettle, cover with water and cook until soft, trying with a fork as you would a potato. When pumpkin is sufficiently cooked, remove skin, put pumpkin through a potato masher and prepare pie filling just as your grandmother did, using sugar for sweetening.

PEARS PRESERVED AND PICKLED

By Betty Barclay

Pickle or preserve 'em—they taste delicious either way. They call for sugar—but sugar is cheap and a wholesome quick-energy fuel. Try these recipes and see how excellent they are:

Pear Preserves

1 pound pears
1 pound sugar
1 pint water
1 lemon, sliced thin

The fruit may be preserved whole, in halves or in quarters. Boil the sugar and water for 5 minutes, add the pears and the lemon, and cook the pears until they are clear and transparent, and until the syrup is a thick consistency. Turn them into clean hot jars and seal them. If hard pears, such as Kieffers, are used, they should be cooked in clear water until tender and the water in which they are cooked should be used in making the syrup. A few cloves or a stick of cinnamon is sometimes added for flavor. Pineapple juice used instead of water in the syrup gives a delicious flavor.

Pickled Pears

4 quarts pears
2 pounds white sugar
2 cups vinegar
1-2 ounce stick cinnamon
1-4 ounce whole cloves

Peel pears. Boil the sugar, the vinegar, the cloves, and the cinnamon for 20 minutes. Place a few of the whole pears at a time in the syrup, and cook them until they are tender. Pack them into thoroughly cleaned jars. Adjust the rubbers, and fill each jar to overflowing with the hot syrup. Adjust the covers and seal the jars immediately.

USE UP THE TOMATOES

By Betty Barclay

Use up the tomatoes in your own garden or in a nearby store. They may be turned into delicious bites for the days to come. The sugar used in the following recipes turns these delicious bites into real fuel as well, for sugar is one of our best quick-energy foods:

Tomato Chutney

2 dozen ripe tomatoes, medium size, chopped
6 onions, medium size, chopped
3 red peppers, seeded and chopped
1 dozen tart apples, peeled and chopped
Salt
1 pound seedless raisins
1 cup celery, cut fine
2 quarts vinegar
3 cups sugar
1 teaspoon each, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves

Combine ingredients, and cook in a preserving kettle until the chutney is thick and clear. Stir frequently to prevent burning. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal.

Tomato Preserves

4 pounds small tomatoes (yellow, green or red tomatoes; fruit must be firm).
6 pounds sugar
1 quart water
1-4 ounce ginger
1-2 lemon
1-2 ounce cinnamon

Make the syrup of the sugar and water. Add the lemon, sliced, and the spices. Boil ten minutes. Add tomatoes gradually. Cook until the tomatoes become bright and clear. Stir occasionally from bottom of pan to keep from burning. Remove from fire. Let stand several hours before packing. Drain and cook syrup longer if proper density has not been reached.

Mitchell's Philosophy Expressed in Letter

Our valued writer and Alton, N. H., representative is responsible for the following:

I received a letter yesterday from Fred Willis of Freeport, L. I., New York, which began: "Oh yes, I know I should have written long ago, but when a fellow has had only four days work since the 26th of June he has little to write about."

I have had one day's work in the last three months; that is, hired for pay. And it was a corker, too—unloading a full carload of asbestos shingles, bundles weighing 65 lbs. to about 80 lbs. to the bundle. I wore out a pair of canvas gloves, ruined two shirts and a pair of work trousers, but I did it without a murmur and was able to walk the next day. This comes from having had a healthy grandmother, as Arthur Brisbane has remarked.

Letters we receive from distant points tell of unemployment, great changes in style of living and fear of the coming winter. New England is as well prepared for it as any part of the U. S. A., I think. We have not as much population and many of us have become accustomed to mere existance. It is harder for those who have had $50 a week in cash and have spent it as fast as received. Perhaps you recall the story of the grasshopper that asked the ant for food and shelter: The ant asked, "What have you been doing all summer?" and the grasshopper replied, "I have been singing in the fields," "Well," replied the ant, "Now is a good time for you to dance."

This tells the story in fable form.

The fact is, our people face the results of foolish acts. We must get back to the land, to a more simple life. The future of this country, in my opinion, is this: The mass of workers will be mere peasants; another class will be bandits and grafters, and at the top will be a few money-bags in control of the sources of wealth. The mass now consider that this would be hardship, but the fact is that greater freedom would be enjoyed and more true happiness achieved. There can be no more abject slavery than that now endured by the poorer classes in our large cities—being pushed and trampled on, living on the edge of an abyss and no chance for betterment. The barefoot mountain man, told about in song and story, is richer in bone, brawn and heroic manhood. A pale and puny youngster with a cigarette in his mouth—even though he have a rich father—is a disgusting weak brother.

I hope you are well; that is, that your parts function properly. I walked to Laconia a short time ago, accompanied by my eldest grandson; saw Brother Weeks, rode back on the train with him as far as his station. He's a lovable old chap. I like him.

Tomorrow will mark my seventy-first birthday anniversary. Was made a husband forty-nine years ago the second of this month. 'Time and tide waits for no man."

All's well and tomorrow is another day.

It's hard telling whether it is a neighborhood spat or just coming in over the radio.

Eliot A. Fuller Co.

Men's and Boys' Clothing

NORWAY, MAINE

The Eliot A. Fuller Co. organized April 26, 1921, is the successor of the H. B. Foster Co., and the Lee M. Smith Co., and located in the Opera House Block.

Mr. Fuller came to Norway from Bath in 1921, where he had been associated with John J. Desmond Co. for fifteen years. He modernized the business and has built up a strong and popular store. He is a young man with live ideas and has worked into the business organizations of this community. As a prominent Mason, a Kiwanian, member of the Board of Trade, Merchant's Association and American Legion, he is actively identified with the forces which make the town grow and prosper. He enlisted in the coast artillery in 1917 and served overseas, therefore he is popular with the service men in this vicinity.

Mr. Fuller carries a complete line of men's and boys' furnishings under a strict "money back if not satisfied" guarantee.

Norway Auto Co., Inc.

E. L. Brown Hosmer Bros.

"Norway's Most Popular Service Station"

This garage and service station was organized on Deering Street in 1915. In two years it had outgrown the building and moved to the Beck Garage on Main street, the present location.

Elon L. Brown, Ben Hosmer and Henry Hosmer comprise the company and handle all the business.

Besides a general garage business with gas, oil and accessories constantly on hand, they install and service three heating systems, using kitchen and range oil burners. They are agents for the A. B. C. range and oil heater burners; Quaker heaters and the Eastern oil furnace burners and equipment.

PRESERVING VEGETABLES

By Betty Barclay

Your preserve closet is not complete with jars of fruit and bottles of pickles. Vegetables should be remembered also. They help to furnish roughage for the winter, while the sugar they contain is an excellent fuel for the cold days to come.

Carrot Marmalade

12 raw carrots
4 cups sugar
3 lemons
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground allspice

Grate carrots, add sugar and let stand one hour. Add lemon juice and spices. cook slowly for 1 hour. Turn into sterilized jars and seal when cold.

Pumpkin Preserves

Remove the rind and seed from a small pumpkin and cut the flesh in inch cubes. Cook in a small amount of water until tender. Drain and weigh. For each pound of pumpkin allow 1 pound of sugar, 2 lemons and 2 ounces of ginger root. Slice the lemon and soak with the ginger over night in cold water. Next morning cook in same water until the lemon rind is tender. Add the sugar and the pumpkin, and simmer until the pumpkin is transparent. Drain and pack in jars. Cook syrup until it is thick and pour over the fruit in the jars. Seal tightly.

The Exiled Acadians

By C. F. Whitman

Chapter XII

The Exiles Start Away

By a mere accident Marie was saved the necessity of dissembling to John or of telling him anything about the contemplated escape of the Acadians. Early in the morning of Saturday, while driving some stock to pasture, John saw Marquette and an Indian going away into the woods. From what had taken place on the arrival in the village of the Acadians as captives, and John's uniform kindness and sympathy for them since, and the information which had been communicated to him that Marie was to remain in the Granby family and become John's wife, Marquette felt that he ought to bid John goodbye, as he thought that he would never see him again, and he waived his hand to the young man and shouted a farewell.

"Hold on! What does all this mean, Louis?" exclaimed John as he hurried to them. "You are not going away for good, are you?" Marquette hesitated in much confusion, not knowing just what to do or say, but finally stammered out in broken English that John could be trusted to keep an important secret, he imagined and not betray the exiles, since he had always been their friend and was to keep one of them behind, and make her his wife.

"Certainly, Louis," said John, "I hope you will all get away, but Marie, and she, I couldn't see go for anything. But how can you get away safely while the war continues? I expected you would go after it ends. And who is this you have with you—a new or an old friend? You can trust me not to betray you. Tell me, Louis, all about it."

Marquette: "He Quanto—lived in zee little home in Acadie. St. Aubin tell him come find—get us all away. Come all way round by Quebec—an zee long lake to help us."

John: "Mon Dieu, as I should say in your language, then he must be a great hero," and he advanced to the Scout, and warmly shook him by the hand.

Quanto: "Ugh! Bon Garcon!" Marquette then related to John briefly the plan for their escape, after which John bid them goodbye, after wishing them success.

The Acadians were to start on their outing at nine a. m., and John asked Marie whether they two hadn't better go to a hill south of the village, where there was an abundance of spring flowers—Mayflowers, as afterwards they came to be called. To this she assented as it would relieve all parties and herself from embarrassment. It was best, she thought, that she take no formal parting with her mother, but choked with emotion, she silently pressed the hand of her mother, and quietly wished her goodbye with a safe journey to the new home in Acadia with her father, to whom she sent a message of affection.

Jean, Fay and Pelisse with Jean's dog, Prix, were the happiest and most demonstrative of the party, as the little band of exiles started off into the woods, for to them it was only a day's outing by themselves, but the older ones were sobered at the contemplation of the great and perilous journey before them. After a tramp of several miles under the leadership of Dubois, they were joined by Marquette and Quanto, and at some distance after, by Felix Fontaine and Henri, who had become so impatient that they must needs come to meet the female members of the family, which they hadn't seen for nearly three years, where a short stop was made to rest and partake of a lunch. The meeting of this reunited family had filled all eyes but Quanto's with tears—Quanto, like nearly all Indians, was a stoic. Jean was then told that they were all going where his father was, and like a boy, was delighted for a time with the prospect of new scenes and events. Along about five o'clock in the afternoon the little party reached the barn described in the last chapter, where they found Mouton on guard with a bountiful supply of provisions, which they greedily partook of. He had gathered sufficient grass with some loose hay and evergreen boughs, to make comfortable beds for all and they passed a very restful night. Breakfast eaten they were in motion again. It was the Sabbath day, but for them it was essential that they make use of it if they would insure their safety. The Sunday of that time was from sundown, Saturday evening to sundown Sunday evening, and nothing was allowed to be done or any traveling about during that time by the Puritans. This favored the movements of the exiles, who knew of course, that their absence and attempt to escape would be discovered when they did not return from their projected outing, and they thought, with good reason that Sunday night, or a part of it would be taken up in preparations to get together Sergeant Stackpole's company to follow and capture and take them back. Accordingly there was no loitering in their movements, but the leaders had regard for the women and children, who were not used to such tramps and that, too, over rough and uneven Indian trails in the forests. But notwithstanding all difficulties, the little band of weary fugitives, a short time before sundown reached the bank of the great river opposite the encampment of Captain DeLisle's company.

Quanto had gone ahead to notify the commander of the approach of the exiles and the raft manned by some of his soldiers was there ready to take them across. This water craft, however, was not large enough for all to be taken over on it at the same time, and two trips were made before they were all safely brought to the encampment and provided for. The movements of a raft propelled by poles, even by the strong arms of muscular men, through the current of a great river, in any case, would be slow and laborious, and this one was no exception—however, it was after a time accomplished and that before dark. Having no further use for it the raft was destroyed and its timbers allowed to drift down the current of the river to prevent its being found and made use of by pursuing enemies.

Thus far everything had favored the exiles. Their plans and movements had been well conceived and successfully executed, but now matters affecting them passed into the hands of Captain Roger DeLisle, to be governed by his orders. His situation was quite critical, however, as they were in the heart of the country of the English, with a military post on the river above them and one through the mountains not far from the New York state line, and three days march before them by the rate the women and children could travel, to the place on the Pawlet River, where the boats had been left. It was a far different matter in returning than their coming to their present place of encampment had been, for though the country was sparsely settled, the people might be stirred up to hostile action and come down upon them like a nest of disturbed and angry hornets. Captain DeLisle therefore wisely concluded that on the morrow his company, with the exiles, had better be on the march for Fort Carrillon, for there was no doubt in his mind that they would be pursued. Leaving them for a while, we will return to Hadley and see what has taken place there.

Human nature hasn't changed much in the past two thousand years and reformers might as well not expect to revolutionize the world in a few years.

is "tailor-made" for Soconyland

SOCONY was a pioneer in carrying the flag of American business to China. The gasoline we sell there is especially suited to that country.

Soconyland—New York and New England—differs from China in its motoring conditions: its climate, its roads and hills, its temperature changes.

Socony—the right gasoline for Soconyland—is tailor-made by Socony engineers to fit these differences. Socony is made—and proved in a fleet of Socony test cars—for the motoring conditions you yourself encounter wherever you drive in New York or New England.

Enjoy the special advantages of fuels tailor-made for you. Try a tankful of Socony. You'll quickly see why, in Soconyland, Socony is "Standard."

GHOST EFFECTS

Ghost effects are the easiest of any trick effects to produce. They do not involve the use of masks or other special apparatus. In making a ghost picture the set which is used is rather dark and the film exposed in the usual manner. Then the ghost in a white costume is posed against a black background and photographed up in the same film. The effect is what you have secured when you forgot to wind the film in your "Brownie"—two complete images upon one film. Because the ghost is light and moving, while the background is black and stationery, makes it appear that the ghost is transparent and the background can be seen through it, but scientifically speaking it is just as true that the background is transparent and allows the figure to show through.

Many applications can be made of this simple effect. The ghost may jump in or fade in, all depending upon the exposure upon the ghost alone. Rough approximation replace exact registration and in every way it is the most simple process in the realm of cine-trickery.

For example let us photograph a landscape with plenty of sky, the whole of rather dull tonal value. Now in the studio we wind the film and pose a female figure clad in flowing white draperies. Now with an off-stage electric fan blowing the draperies and a dull black background behind the actress we again expose the film.

Effect—a ghostly translucent figure of an angel floating through the air, draperies fluttering in the wind, details plainly visible, but the background detail faintly visible in all parts of the figure. Here we see how to create ghosts. The camerman is spiritualist, necromancer and magus. Another effect is the actor seeing visions in the fireplace or as he goes to sleep in his chair and dreams.

The form for the vision is determined. If the vision is a dream it may be one corner of the frame, if the fireplace or a smoke cloud, a mask must be made which will roughly conform to the shape of the space.

Effect—the actor comes into scene, sits down, lights pipe, blows cloud of smoke, and sees in the smoke a vision. He wipes his eyes with his hand and vision disappears.

When the first cloud is blown, the scene faded out, the actor remains motionless, the vision block mask is inserted and the dissolve lapped. The scene is carried on until time for the hand to brush away the vision.

The vision scene is now prepared and the camera set up. The scene block mask is inserted and the vision block mask is removed and here the vision scene is faded in and run through just like any ordinary scene being faded out at the proper footage.

There is hardly a single fantastic idea which cannot be given existence upon the screen. The next article to appear soon will be "Time Consideration", the photographing the growth of a plant or the blossoming of a flower.

"To some people a college training in agriculture is only for those who intend to farm. A large number of agricultural graduates at the present time, however, enter other fields of agriculture," says Professor Maurice D. [illegible] of the College of Agriculture, in speaking about agricultural college graduates.

"The products of six million farms in the United States have to be assembled, graded, processed, packaged, stored, financed, transported and distributed to the consumer," he continued. "Farmers have to be furnished with farm equipment, feed, fertilizer, seed, and other supplies. The term 'agriculture', therefore, becomes more than 'farming'; it involves commerce, industry and finance. In handling the products of our farms and furnishing them their supplies, it becomes necessary to operate cold storage warehouses, milk plants, creameries, canneries, packing plants, curing plants, feed mills, fertilizer factories, banks, insurance companies and transportation facilities.

"These agencies require advisers, agents, technicians, managers, and administrative executives who are familiar with the problems of agriculture and the technique of handling its products. In recent years there has been a very definite tendency for college men trained in agriculture to enter these phases of the industry of agriculture.

"Many other fields are also open to graduates in agriculture, such as education, investigation, regulatory work and farming Educational opportunities are to be found with Colleges of Agriculture, Extension Services, High Schools, County Schools, and with commercial companies. From a beginning as a Smith-Hughes teacher, county agent, or college instructor, promotion leads to principalship, superintendency, state specialist, professorship, or departmental head. It requires more than two-thirds of all graduates of agricultural colleges in this country to fill the vacancies each year in this particular field.

"Such agencies as the Federal Department of Agriculture, State Agricultural Experiment Stations, Colleges of Agriculture, privately endowed institutions and commercial concerns employ men trained in agriculture for investigational work in many lines. Research in agriculture has developed extensively in recent years. Agricultural College graduates begun as research assistants, frequently working for advanced degrees, and ad-

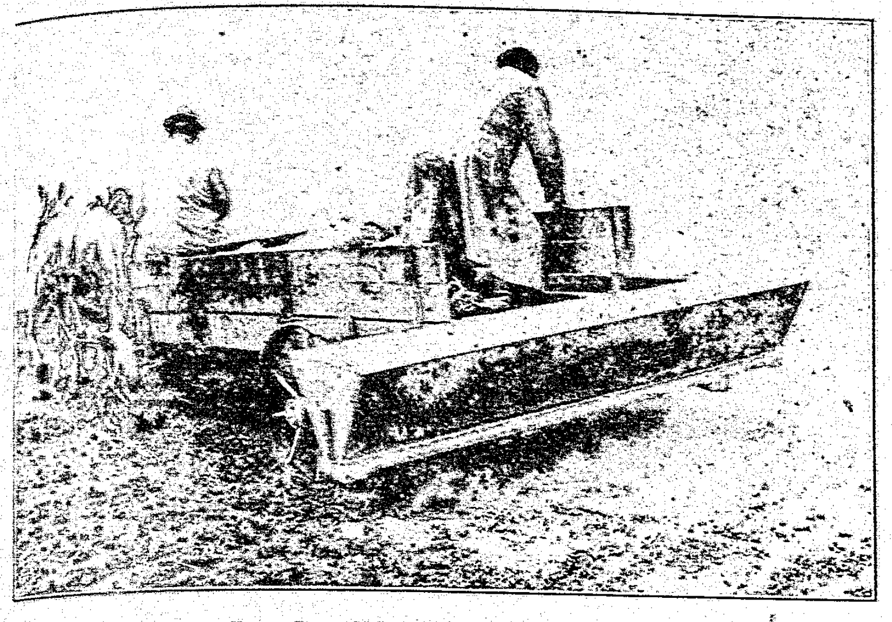
AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

LIME ON LAND

Lime, and its value in sweetening Oxford County soils, is to receive extra attention this fall, says the county agent. Too often the ground is fitted and the grass and hay crop seeded before thinking of the soil acidity, its toxic effect and resulting low hay and crop yields. Soil tests are easily secured by sending small samples to the county agent and should be made before lime is applied. Disappointments sometimes occur with the use of lime because the soil is sweet enough, or because the soil is very acid and not enough lime is used. Late spring applications of lime are sometimes disappointing because liming does not take effect soon enough to show up fully on the summer's crop.



Putting Lime On the Land

The practice of fall liming has much to commend it. The liming material can be thoroughly mixed with the soil, as it should be; more time is available for this work in the fall; and the liming material has ample time to do its work before spring. Last year the community project leaders helped out interested farmers in pooling orders for car-lot shipment which cuts the handling charges to a minimum. In some cases local leaders have handled the lime with the assistance of the project leaders. Similar plans will be followed this fall. The Norway Project Leader is J. Leslie Millett. Other project leaders in the county are as follows:

Picture Shows Use and Non-Use of Lime

"To some people a college training in agriculture is only for those who intend to farm. A large number of agricultural graduates at the present time, however, enter other fields of agriculture," says Professor Maurice D. Jones of the College of Agriculture, in speaking about agricultural college graduates.

"The products of six million farms in the United States have to be assembled, graded, processed, packaged, stored, financed, transported and distributed to the consumer," he continued. "Farmers have to be furnished with farm equipment, feed, fertilizer, seed, and other supplies. The term 'agriculture', therefore, becomes more than 'farming'; it involves commerce, industry and finance. In handling the products of our farms and furnishing them their supplies, it becomes necessary to operate cold storage warehouses, milk plants, creameries, canneries, packing plants, curing plants, feed mills, fertilizer factories, banks, insurance companies and transportation facilities.

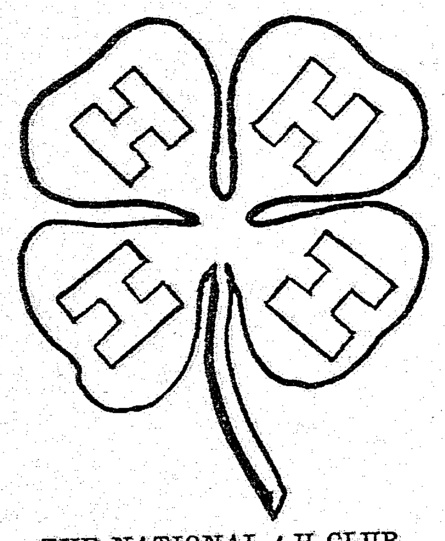
"These agencies require advisers, agents, technicians, managers, and administrative executives who are familiar with the problems of agriculture and the technique of handling its products. In recent years there has been a very definite tendency for college men trained in agriculture to enter these phases of the industry of agriculture.

"Many other fields are also open to graduates in agriculture, such as education, investigation, regulatory work and farming. Educational opportunities are to be found with Colleges of Agriculture, Extension Services, High Schools, County Schools, and with commercial companies. From a beginning as a Smith-Hughes teacher, county agent, or college instructor, promotion leads to principalship, superintendency, state specialist, professorship, or departmental head. It requires more than two-thirds of all graduates of agricultural colleges in this country to fill the vacancies each year in this particular field.

"Such agencies as the Federal Department of Agriculture, State Agricultural Experiment Stations, Colleges of Agriculture, privately endowed institutions and commercial concerns employ men trained in agriculture for investigational work in many lines. Research in agriculture has developed extensively in recent years. Agricultural College graduates begin as research assistants, frequently working for advanced degrees, and advance to positions of responsibility in charge of investigational work.

"The Federal Department of Agriculture, State Departments of Agriculture, city boards of health, and large industrial companies employ men trained in agriculture for regulatory work in connection with protecting the quality of the country's food supply.

"The present tendency in agriculture toward a larger sized farm business is increasing the opportunity for trained men as operators. Agricultural graduates of the University of Maine, College of Agriculture are engaged in a large number of different types of farming, both in this and in other states. Graduates who have undertaken farming as a business have beyond question demonstrated the economic value of a training in agriculture."



THE NATIONAL 4-H CLUB EMBLEM.

4-H Club work is not new but we still find many people who do not know the meaning of the four "H's".

The four leaf clover with the four "H's" is the national 4-H Club emblem. The "H's" represent the fourfold development of the Head, Heart, Hands and Health.

The pledge for the 4-H Club boy and girl is: "I pledge—

My head to clearer thinking
My heart to greater loyalty
My hands to larger service and
My health to better living for my club, my community and my country."

FOR THAT YOUNGER BOY

"Be at the Den at three o'clock and be sure and bring around the rest of the gang," said one small blue clad boy to another within the hearing of a passerby. The latter, curiosity aroused, glanced at the youngsters obviously not more than nine or ten years of age, and who, with equal certainty, were not planning a major racket.

The man, with boys of his own, walked along with one of the lads. "Where is your Den and what do you do there?" he inquired. "We're Cubs and we are going to meet in my back yard this week," the younster replied.

More questions, and further answers from the boy stimulated the interest of the adult, who found that he had run into a practical instance of the working out of the new Cub Movement for younger boys launched about a year ago by the Boy Scouts of America, and already with 19,000 Cubs registered in its Packs. This father learned at the local Boy Scout headquarters in his city that Cub Packs are being organized in all parts of the United States for boys of nine, ten and eleven years on a program developed by the Boy Scouts of America, after research by Dr. H. W. Hurt and other specialists in work among boys.

The program, the inquiry showed, has been carefully formulated, its activities centering in and about the home, with parental influences distinctly a part of the plan. The unit of Cubbing is the Den or local neighborhood group, one or more of these comprising a Pack, which meets at wider intervals and is under a sponsoring committee. A Cubmaster directs the Pack. Each Den, which is in reality a small natural play group, has, in addition to a Den Mother representing the parental interest, a Den Chief, who is an older Boy Scout selected and trained to supervise the Den. Then also the boys have their own leader, a Denner, elected by themselves. The activities, because of the youth of the Cubs, tend toward play, but the Den Chief encourages the boys in their other activities, such as collections, kite-making and flying, handicrafts, hobbies, and in their games. The boys, upon entering at nine, first become Wolf Cubs, then at ten years, Bear Cubs, and in the third year, Lion Cubs, finally graduating into Scouting at twelve. They can be told because of their distinctive blue uniform, with gold stripes on the blue stockings and gold piping on the blue cap.

While the Boy Scouts of America is anxious that the program should develop slowly, new Packs are being organized and new Cubs registered at the rate of 2,000 a month.

UPTON LADIES' AID GIVEN AID

The estate of Mr. Jenkins, who died August 27 last, at Wilson's Mills, Me., was estimated at "over $10,000."

He bequeathed $2,200 to the Upton, Me., Ladies' Aid Association.

A $1,500 fund to purchase ice cream on hot days for the women patients in the sick ward of the State Homeopathic Hospital, Middletown, N. Y., was established in the will of William G. Jenkins. The ice cream is to be purchased each year between May and November, and if there is enough to go around the men patients in the sick ward may be served too.

It won't be long now before bright young college boys will be forgetting about the pursuit of education while trying to follow the pigskin.

W. C. T. U. Convention

the educational value it has for our young people, so many of whom are reaching the voting age each year. The speaking contests have been found to be one of the best means of informing our young people of conditions as they were under the old saloon system, and the ideals of what they should be under enforcement of the 18th Amendment, by the use of selections from our 20th Century reciters. The response from the letter was very good. A number have written for literature and instructions, and contests were held in several new localities.

A decided change has been made by National in the style of medals or pins. Instead of the large medal with bar and chains, which in most cases was put away and kept as a souvenir, a pin of attractive design and with safety clasp, is being used. This can be worn like a fraternity pin upon all occasions, and is a constant reminder. The new series consists of silver, gold, pearl, diamond and grand diamond pins. They are attractively priced and are proving very popular with the young people.

It is hoped that the coming year will see an increased interest in the Medal Contest work that two or more gold medal contests from among this year's winners of silver medals may be held, and continuing groups of silver medal contests in both new and old territory. Our banner year for medal contests was in 1927 when 22 contests were held throughout the state, 14 silver, 6 gold and 2 grand gold. Let us make medal contests popular and strive during the year 1932 to excel even this fine record.

The Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U.

Report by Mildred S. Washburn, State Secretary, Y. P. Branch.

"The purpose of the Young People's Branch is to unite the young people of the community, county and state for the active promotion of the observance of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution and its enforcement; to emphasize the value of total abstinence for the individual; to educate its members to the effects of narcotics upon the human system; to study the meaning of a single standard of purity and live it; to study the principles of Christian Citizenship and thus help fulfill the purpose of the W. C. T. U. 'to educate the young; to form a better public sentiment.'

"In 1936 nearly 60% of the voters of our country will have become of age since 1920", says a writer on this subject, and a large proportion of that 60% is likely to be skeptical of the 18th Amendment. It is the aim of the Young People's Branch to interest these young voters in their organization before the Wets entice them into their anti-prohibition movement.

Already many young people of our State have demonstrated that they wish to have themselves lined up with Prohibition and law enforcement by personal support and observance of the 18th Amendment. During the last three years nearly 4,000 young people of Maine between the ages of 14 and 30 have signed "Youth's Roll Call", an enrollment blank published by the National W. C. T. U. and presented in the schools, churches, and other societies where young people are organized. The President of the National W. C. T. U. is expecting a million signatures in November and happily the number of signatures is fast approaching that quota.

Everywhere the young people are waiting and anxious to be organized, but it is difficult to find leaders. Our work is a consecrated work and it requires sacrifice often, but work with the youth of the land will bring most lasting results in the life of our communities and country.

OUR COUNTRY

Our country! 'Tis a glorious land!
With broad arms stretched from shore to shore,
The proud Pacific chafes her strand,
She hears the dark Atlantic roar;
And nurtured on her ample breast
How many a goodly prospect lies
In Nature's wildest grandeur drest
Enameled with the loveliest dyes.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Nearly, if not all, the families on this street were represented at the Oxford County fair, some not leaving the grounds from Monday morning till Friday night.

Mrs. Bessie Trebilcock of Oxford village was a Sunday guest at her daughter's, Mrs. Leon Twitchell's.

Mrs. Chestina Twitchell received word Sunday afternoon of the serious illness of her granddaughter, Geraldine Giles of Skowhegan. Mrs. Twitchell left immediately for there. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brown accompanied her.

E. E. Twitchell made his usual business trip into Portland Monday, with Mr. Barker.

It is hardly considered "boys' play" when one finds a broken noose around the horns of their young stock out to pasture, nor is it pleasing to find the bars down, letting the stock have chances to get onto the railroad track, yet such is the case.

Rev. Fred Clothey and family, missionaries from India, formerly of Auburn, are guests at Ai Twitchell's.
